1 TippingSports Overview

Complete betting tips management

From betting tip management to fully automated betting bots, keep all your tips in one place, allow others to follow you and follow other successful punters!

TippingSports is a site for people to follow or post tips on sports events, for bettors and for tipsters. The site also offers the feature to automate the placing of bets on tips selections through the TippingSports website itself or through the Bf Bot Manager automated betting software. Both automated methods require having a Betfair account. But the tips can be followed manually by betting with any bookmaker.

Follow or post tips

Follow tipsters or post your own tips. Any user can post their own tips or follow other user tips. All tipster results are independently verified by using Betfair odds with 4% commission removed. Bettors can trust that the results shown on the TippingSports website are correct and trustworthy. Tipsters cannot edit the results in any way. Results are shown in a very clear and simple way using a 100 point bank and bet sizes limited to 0.25-2.00 points per bet.

Automated betting on tips by TippingSports

A quick and easy “set and forget” solution that will bet on all tips from tipsters that a user selects. It is possible to connect your Betfair account to the TippingSports site and enable level stakes bets on the tipsters you follow. It is the simplest and easiest way to setup automated betting without having to worry about the technical side of things.

Automated betting on tips by BF Bot Manager

Recommended for advanced users that want to fine tune settings, apply staking plans and have full control over their betting. It is possible to have the tips from the tipsters you follow sent to the Bf Bot Manager automated betting software which can run on your home PC or on a VPS to allow more advanced settings and customized control of your betting. You can set staking plans, time to bet, stop-loss safety limits and many other advanced features this way.

Multiple tip notification options

When new tips are added, followers can be notified by your profile page, by email, by Telegram messages, by Twitter tweets, or by using a unique link that lists tips in a machine friendly format. For automated betting software this makes it really easy and convenient to receive tips in the format you prefer or for you to share your tips if you are trying to build up a following.

2 Guide For Bettors Following Tips

2.1 Tutorial: How to follow your first tipster

After registering for free to join the TippingSports site, you can click on the “Tipping” drop-down menu and select “Tipsters”. This will display the tipster table and is the place to select which tipsters to follow.

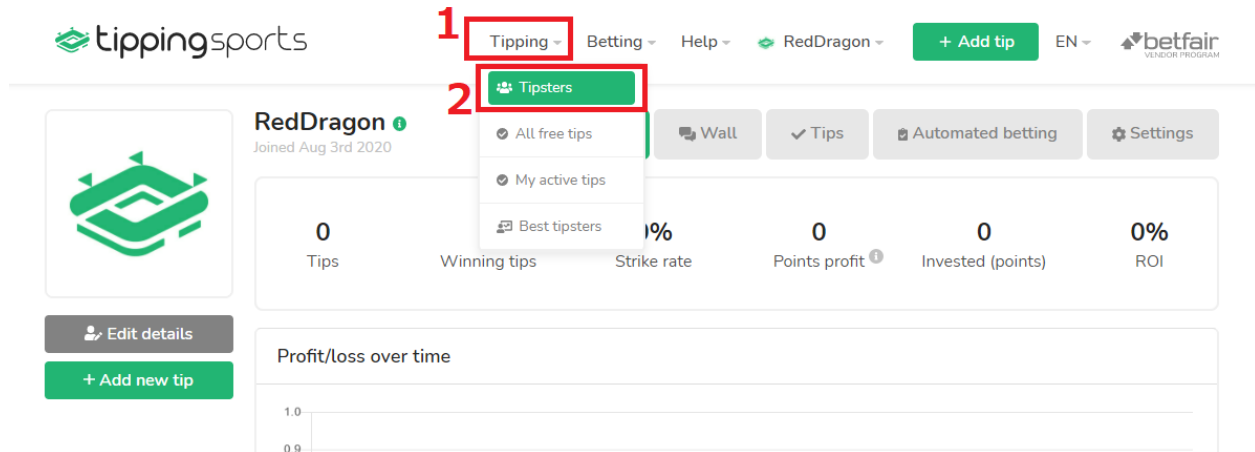

Image 1

The tipster table displays the current month's table for all sports and all tipsters by default. You can edit this to focus only on specific sports such as football or horses. You can also filter by time period, such as by specific month, Last year or All time. 25 tipsters are shown on each page. You can move forward page by page or change the settings to show more than 25 per page.

The tipsters are ranked by their profit and loss column (P/L).

It is calculated as the total profit divided by the amount of money invested, So 100 invested to get 20 profit would be a ROI of 20%. The invested number is the amount of points bet in this month to achieve that P/L.

If you click on a tipster name, then you will be taken to their profile page. This shows their tipping history with the number of tips they have posted, their strike rate, their overall P/L and ROI. You can follow a tipster by clicking on their “Follow” button.

The screenshot shows the 'tipping sports' website header with navigation links: Tipping, Betting, Help, RedDragon, + Add tip, EN, and betfair VENDOR PROGRAM. The main content area displays the profile for 'RedDragon', who joined on Aug 3rd 2020. The profile includes a green icon, a 'Follow' button (highlighted with a red box), and a summary of performance metrics: 7,148 Tips, 2,077 Winning tips, 29.06% Strike rate, +338.93 Points profit, 12,314.75 Invested (points), and 2.75% ROI. There are also buttons for 'Charts', 'Tips', and 'Automated betting'.

Image 7

2.2 Warning: Past profits do not guarantee future profits.

The tipster profile pages show the real results of a tipster based on Betfair odds minus 4% commission. Please understand that past profit does not guarantee future profit. Anyone can post tips. Tipsters can bet on any available sport. Tipsters may change their betting style at any time. Tipsters can place any number of tips. Despite having a limit of 30 points per day, if they tipped 0.25 points on each bet, it is possible to post 120 tips in one day. The only way you can judge a tipster is by looking through their profile, wall and past results and then considering this information carefully. All tips are settled automatically by using Betfair exchange results. However if there are no odds at the Betfair exchange market, then tips might be voided. If Betfair provides the wrong result, then tips might be settled wrongly. This occurs very rarely, but it can happen. Users need to be very careful when deciding who to follow. The following guide gives some advice on how to choose tipsters.

2.3 How to choose tipsters

2.3.1 Tipster Tables

Click on the “Tipping > Tipsters” menu to view the tipster tables.

Ranking by Time

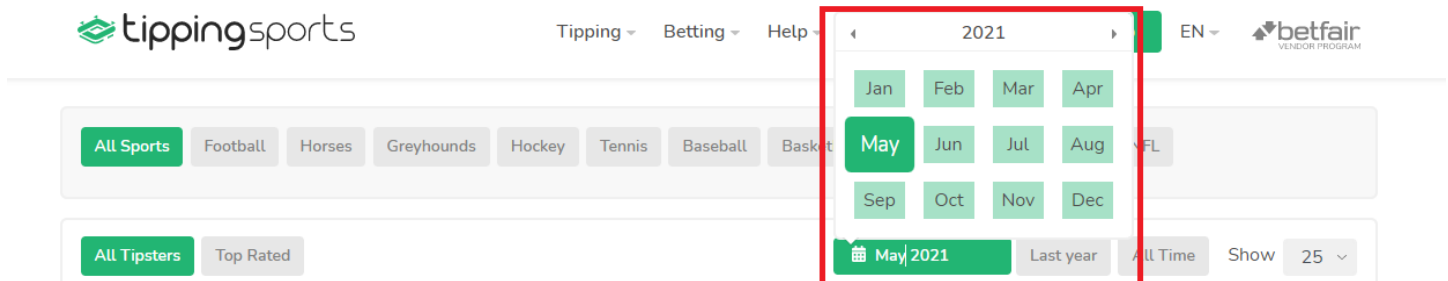

Image 8 – Sorting Tipster Results by Month

Sorting by month allows you to see which tipster names keep appearing at the top of the list each month, showing they are active and performing well.

Image 9 – Sorting Tipster Results by Last Year

Sorting results by last year allows you to see those tipsters who were active last year and performed well over a period of 12 months. It can be a good place to start by viewing the best performers from the previous year and checking their profile to see if they could continue their results into this year.

Image 10 – Sorting Tipster Results by All Time

Sorting results by All Time allows you to see the best performers over the longest time period. Results of our longest serving tipsters go back to 2016. However, some tipsters are no longer active, so it is important to check the results table on each tipster's profile page to see how regular they have been posting tips.

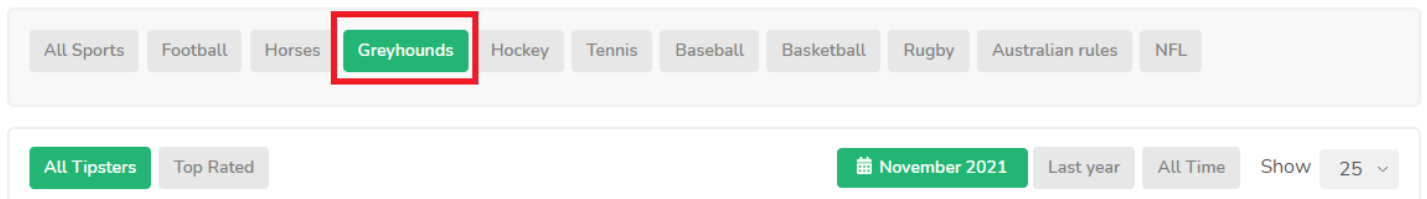

Image 11 – Sorting Tipster Results by Sport

Sorting results by sport allows you to find tipsters for specific areas. You may already have your own football or horses betting system, but want to spread your betting to include other sports by finding tipsters with an edge in those areas.

Tipster Icons

Guide For Bettors Following Tips

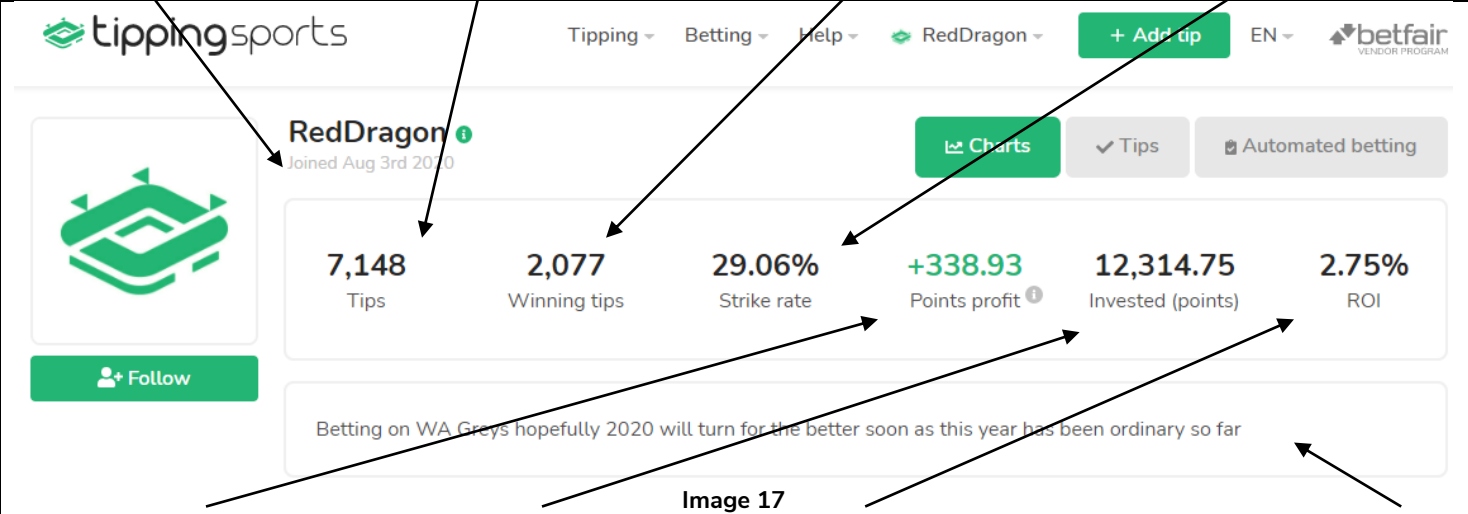

How to choose tipsters

Some tipsters have an icon next to their name to give extra information at a glance.

 Image 12	A lock icon next to a tipster's name means that their tips are private. If you click "Follow" on their profile page, then your request will need to be approved by that user.
 Image 13	An "I" icon next to a tipster's name means that their tips are automatically generated by a bot, an algorithm or other such computer software based method.
 Image 14	A warning triangle icon next to a tipster's name means that their account has been reset to zero profit/loss at least once in its lifetime. Accounts can be automatically reset if they reach -100 P/L or at TippingSports' discretion if they are inactive for a long period of time. The details of account resets can be seen on the user profile page like the example below. This helps you make judgements on whether to follow a tipster or not. Account resets<table><tr><th>Date</th><th>Description</th><th>Win % Won/Total</th><th>ROI ⓘ Invested</th><th>P/L ⓘ</th><th>P/L for £10 stakes</th></tr><tr><td>Oct 4th 2021</td><td>User account reset due to inactivity.</td><td>55.42 % 440/794</td><td>-3.55% 976.00</td><td>-34.64</td><td>£-346.40</td></tr></table> Image 15	Date	Description	Win % Won/Total	ROI ⓘ Invested	P/L ⓘ	P/L for £10 stakes	Oct 4th 2021	User account reset due to inactivity.	55.42 % 440/794	-3.55% 976.00	-34.64	£-346.40

Charts and Tables

If we scroll down, we can see a line chart and a monthly results table showing the tipster performance.

The line chart is a good way to see the long term performance of a tipster. We can look for how smooth the increase is. We can look for big drops and increases in profits. We can look to see if the user has consistent growth or just good results based on a few lucky months.

Guide For Bettors Following Tips

How to choose tipsters

This is a good way to let them know you are following or considering following their tips. You can also ask questions to find out if their tips are just their own gut feeling or opinion, or if they are based on a more concrete betting system or selection method. Interacting with tipsters is one way of judging how serious or committed a tipster is to providing a good service.

Comment length limit

There is a limit of 500 characters (including spaces) for each comment. So if you have a long comment or question, it is best to break it up into smaller chunks and post in separate parts. If you submit a comment over 500 characters, an error message will appear at the bottom right of the screen telling you that the comment was not accepted. (If you think your comment might be over 500 characters, it is best to copy/save the text before submitting in case it is rejected and the text not saved.)

Deleting comments

You can delete comments if you made a mistake or want to edit and re-post it.

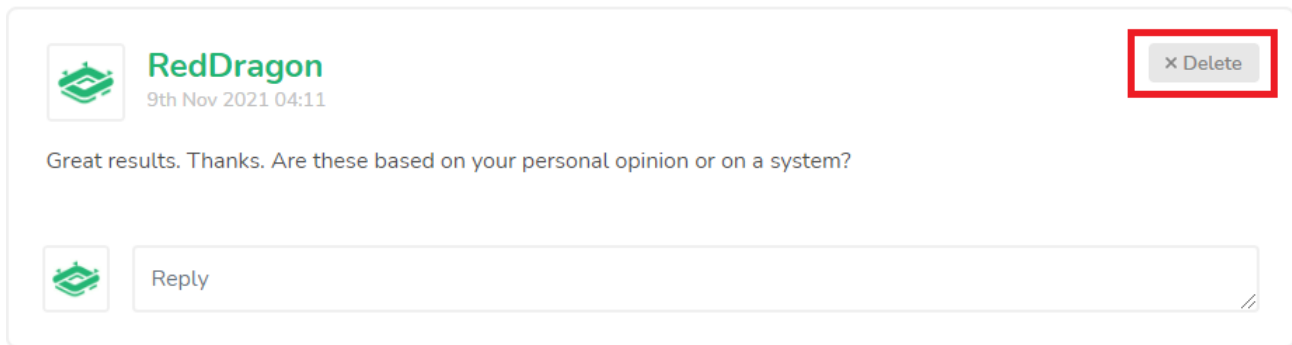

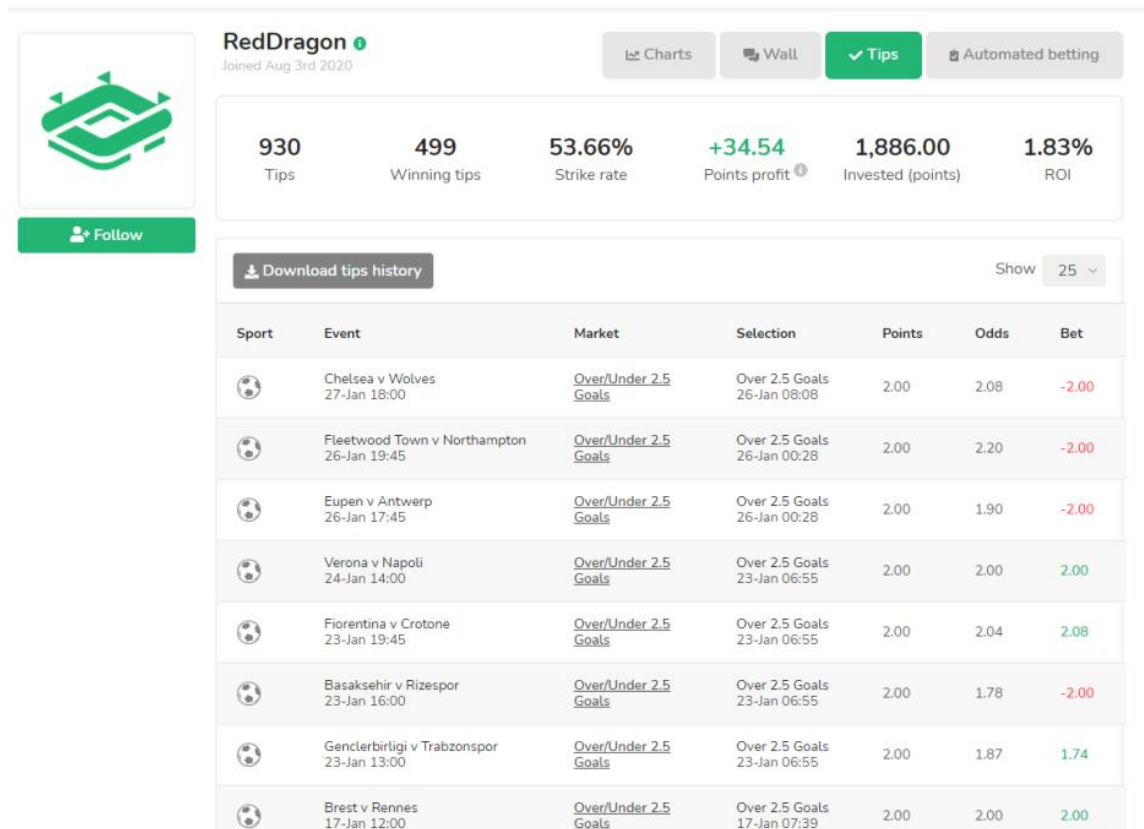

Image 22 – Deleting comments

Private Walls

Tipsters can make their walls private for followers only, so some comments may not be viewable until after your request to follow has been accepted.

By clicking on the “Tips” button, it is possible to see the current and future tips by a user. The tips history can also be downloaded and analyzed by clicking on the “Download tips history” button.

Image 23 – Tipster tips history

Some users may choose to keep their tips history private until a follower is approved. Even if a user's past tips do not appear on their profile page, they will be viewable if you download their tips history.

2.3.5 Public & Private Tipsters

It is possible for tipsters to set their tips as public or private. Public tips can be viewed by anyone. Private tips require tipster approval for each user that wants to follow their tips, even if they are free.

There are many reasons a tipster may keep their tips private. Some might want to be notified when a user starts following them so that they can make sure their best tips are being put out. Some might want to keep their tips private since they are meant for a closed group of followers and not for public consumption. Some might not intend their tips to be followed by others and use their tips just as a way of tracking their own performance or sending bet instructions to their automated betting bots via the TippingSports website interface. For whatever reason they choose to be a private tipster, you can still click and request to follow them, and send messages on their wall (if the wall is not private) to try and communicate with those tipsters if you want to follow them.

2.3.6 Tipsters rules and account reset counter

TippingSports sets limits on how many points a tipster can post in one day. This is to encourage sensible betting practice. It can be useful for followers to also understand the rules placed on tipsters.

Tipsters can tip a maximum of 30 points per day.

This means if a user is betting 1% of their bank on each point, then it should not, in theory, risk more than 30% of their bank in one day. (But this does not stop them from posting 30 points of tips for Saturday's games on 5 consecutive weekdays leading to 150 points worth of bets all being placed on the following Saturday. But you would see those tips building up in your email box and on their tips page. This is also meant as a way to offer a limited form of protection to automated bettors who may not see the betting volume until after the fact. In this way, limiting the points a tipster can post each day has this safety purpose.

Tipsters can post a maximum of 0.25 to 2.00 points on one selection.

Tipsters can post a maximum of 3.00 points on one market.

This is another way to offer a limited form of protection to users. Other tipping websites allow their tipsters to post 10 point bets, sometimes more, on one selection and those lucky wins or losses can give a warped impression of a tipster's true long term tipping skills. By limiting tipsters to more sustainable betting levels, those users that rise to the top of the tipping charts are getting there with multiple, sustained and consistent good results, not just a few lucky big stakes wins.

Tipster accounts are automatically reset at -100 points.

Account resets are shown on each tipster's profile page.

Common betting practice is to use a 100 point betting bank. If a tipster's P/L goes under -100 points, this would suggest that the tipster lost an entire betting bank. We automatically reset the tipster account to zero at this point and place a warning icon next to a tipster's name to warn users that this event occurred.

Tipster accounts can also be automatically reset after a long period of inactivity, such as more than 730 days (= 2 years) of not posting tips. You can see how many times their account was reset, the reason why and the P/L statistics at the time of that reset on their profile page.

2.4 Automated Betting on Tipster Tips through TippingSports.com

It is possible to automate the placing of bets on tipster tips in two ways. The first is directly through the TippingSports website. The second is through use of the Bf Bot Manager software. Both methods require the user having a Betfair account.

The simplest way to set up automated betting is with the TippingSports automated betting option. You can connect your Betfair account to your TippingSports.com account and allow TippingSports.com to place real bets at your Betfair account when you or a tipster that you are following adds new tips.

This method allows 1 point betting on tipster tips and you can set the amount of money that 1 point is equal to. Tipsters past tips with point values between 0.25 and 2 points. Your stake size for each bet would be adjusted according to your 1 point setting. So if your 1 point setting is £10 and a user posts a tip with 2 points, then your bet would be £20. If they tip 0.25 points, then your bet would be £2.50. Keep this in mind when setting your 1 point bet size.

To setup this method of automated betting, go to the “Automated betting” option from the drop-down menu of your profile name.

Image 34 – Tipster tip point values are multiplied by your 1 point value

Please note that tipsters select a points value for each tip between 0.25 and 2.00. The maximum point size for one bet selection is 2.00 points. If your 1 point bet size is set to £2, then a tip with a 2 point bet will mean DOUBLE your 1 point stakes on that one bet. So a 2 point tip would mean a £4 bet on that tip if your 1 point value is £2. When choosing tipsters, pay attention to their average point levels. Do they use different stake sizes or do they always bet the maximum 2 points on each selection? Set your 1 point value with that in mind.

2.5.6 VPS - Virtual Private Server

When following tipster tips it is crucial that you get bets placed on all tips. The best solution to do that is to use automated betting software like the Bf Bot Manager. Once you have a betting bot that will do the work for you, then the only thing left to do is to run that bot 24/7. This is the part where a Virtual Private Server (VPS) can help you.

A VPS is a remote server that is up and running all the time. It is constantly connected to the internet, and has a high speed and very reliable internet connection. You can access a VPS from anywhere and from any device, which allows you to easily check your betting bot and your bets.

A VPS runs on a Windows operating system. You access it by using the remote desktop connection and use it in the same way you use your home computer or laptop. When you close your remote desktop connection, the server keeps working. It does not shut down or go into sleep mode. It keeps working 24/7, which means that your betting bot also keeps working.

When choosing a VPS, it is important that you pick a reliable hosting company. For more than 5 years we have been using SimplyHosting to run our betting bots. They have proven to be extremely fast, reliable and their customer service is fantastic.

Here is a list of the advantages when running a bot on a VPS:

- Up and running 24/7
- High speed internet connection to exchange servers
- Access the VPS from anywhere and from any device
- Reduces your local bandwidth overhead
- UK based IP address
- Hosting company gives 99.99% uptime guarantee

We tested a SimplyHosting VPS server internet connection speed and the results are displayed on this SpeedTest image below.

Guide For Bettors Following Tips Receiving tips

2.6.2 By Unique Link

Each account has a unique link in their profile page. The unique link lists all your tips and tips of all tipsters that you are following. The content that the unique link provides is updated automatically when a tipster that you follow or you add new tip. The main advantage of unique link is that its content can easily be read by any software, especially by betting bots that can get tips at your unique link every few minutes and place bets automatically. The Bf Bot Manager is one example of automated betting software that can use this link.

The screenshot shows the TippingSports profile page for a user named RedDragon. The page has a navigation bar at the top with 'Tipping', 'Betting', 'Help', and a dropdown menu for 'RedDragon'. A red box labeled '1' highlights the 'RedDragon' dropdown. Below the navigation bar, there's a profile section for RedDragon, joined Aug 3rd 2020, with a green icon. A red box labeled '2' highlights the 'Automated betting' button in the top right of the profile section. Below this, there's a statistics section showing 0 Tips, 0 Winning tips, 0% Strike rate, 0 Points profit, 0 Invested (points), and 0% ROI. The main content area is titled 'Automated betting on tips by TippingSports' and contains text about recommended betting. This section contains text about recommended settings and a unique link: https://www.tippingsports.com/api/tips/get_tips/e5e42c849e3123148b712a65e3b33790a63. A red box labeled '3' highlights the 'Copy' button next to the link. Below the link, there's a 'Download strategy file' button, also highlighted with a red box. The page also mentions that the file needs to be saved to a hard drive and imported to Bf Bot Manager V3.

3 Guide For Tipsters Posting Tips

TippingSports.com welcomes all users to post tips. There are many reasons that users may post tips. You don't need to be a professional tipster.

- You might just want to track your own bets.
- You might be posting tips for your friends or a group, for fun or in a group competition.
- You might be posting tips for your own automated bot to follow.
- You might want to build up a tipping history so that you can prove your tipping skills.
- You might already be a professional tipping service on another site, but want to offer your tips to existing subscribers in a format that can be connected to automated betting software such as the Bf Bot Manager through a private TippingSports tipster account.

This section will tell you all you need to know about posting tips.

To add a tip, simply click on the number of points you want to tip on the selection.

You can tip up to 2 points per selection at increments of 0.25 points from 0.25 to 2.00.

You can tip up to 3 points per market.

You can tip up to 3 points per event.

(e.g. For the above football event, you could tip 2 points on the home win and 1 point on the draw. Or you could tip 1.5 points on the home win and 1.5 points on the under 2.5 goals selection. But you could not tip 2 points on the home win and 2 points on the under 2.5 goals selection since that would be over a total of 3 points on this event.

You can post up to 30 points worth of tips each day. (Unused points are not carried over to the next day.) The number of points you have left today is shown at the top right of the Add Tips screen.

Tips can be added up until 5 minutes before the event start time.

Tips can be deleted within 120 seconds of being selected.

Note: The displayed odds are not necessarily the odds that the bet will be placed at. The displayed odds are the odds available when the market was first added to the TippingSports website. Most markets are added 24 hours before the event starts, but if a user manually searches for a market that is more than 24 hours away, then the odds will be from that moment. (i.e. If it is Monday and a user manually views a market for the following Friday, then the odds displayed will be those from the Monday.) However, users subscribed to our TippingSports Automated Betting Service will always see live odds. If a market does not have odds available yet, such as the greyhounds market in Image 59, then no odds will be displayed. In the green bar with the event name above the odds and point choices, there is an option to open a page to see the “latest odds for this market at Betfair”. This link will open the market for this event in a new tab. You can then manually check the latest odds if needed.

The results displayed on the tipster tables and results screens are based on the Betfair Start Price or closing odds of that market. For markets with closing odds above 20, the odds will be recorded as 20. This is to avoid lucky high odds winners distorting tipster results and in order to promote stable betting patterns.

No tips can be added by any account with an overall negative tipping balance in excess of -100. Those accounts will automatically be reset and a warning icon placed next to their Tipster name.

3.2 Your profile page

Your profile page is a great place to tell followers about yourself, your tipping style or betting system. You can even add your website address if you have one.

It can help others to make a decision about whether to follow you or not by telling them:

- Your experience in betting or as a tipster.
- What sports you have expertise in or will be tipping on.
- What staking plan you recommend if you have one.
- When you usually post tips
- What bot settings you recommend (if you are using a bot. such as the Bf Bot Manager)

You can make yourself stand out from the crowd by choosing an avatar or uploading an image of your own. (Images must be GIF, JPG or PNG with a Max size of 120kb and 400x400px)

3.2.1 Your Wall - interact with followers, public or private wall

Your wall is a way you can interact with followers by answering direct questions or by posting your updates or comments. If followers have opted-in on email updates, then they will receive an email alert telling them you have posted a new message on your wall. This can be useful if you want to add comments about a tip you posted or a change in your tipping style.

You can make your wall public or private in your Profile > Edit Details area.

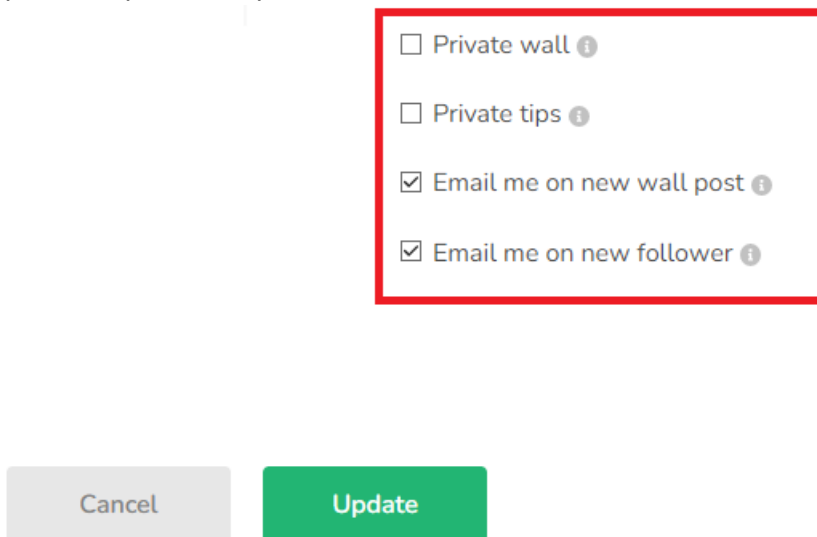

Image 64 – Edit your wall settings

A private wall will only be viewable by your followers. Only your followers will be able to comment.

This will make you tips private. Only followers who you have approved will be able to see and follow your tips.

This means that you will get an email alert if someone posts on your wall.

This means that you will get an email alert if someone starts to follow you. If you have set your account to “Private tips”, then you will get an email alert telling you that someone wants to follow you and has requested approval. You will need to log in and manually “Allow” them to follow your tips. See Public & Private tipping for more on this.

3.2.2 Deleting tips

After you post a tip you only have a window of 120 seconds to delete that tip. If you miss that window and your tip is an error, the only way you can let followers know is by posting on your wall.

3.2.4 Public & Private tipping

It is possible for tipsters to set their tips as public or private. Public tips can be viewed by anyone. Private tips require tipster approval for each user that wants to follow their tips, even if they are free.

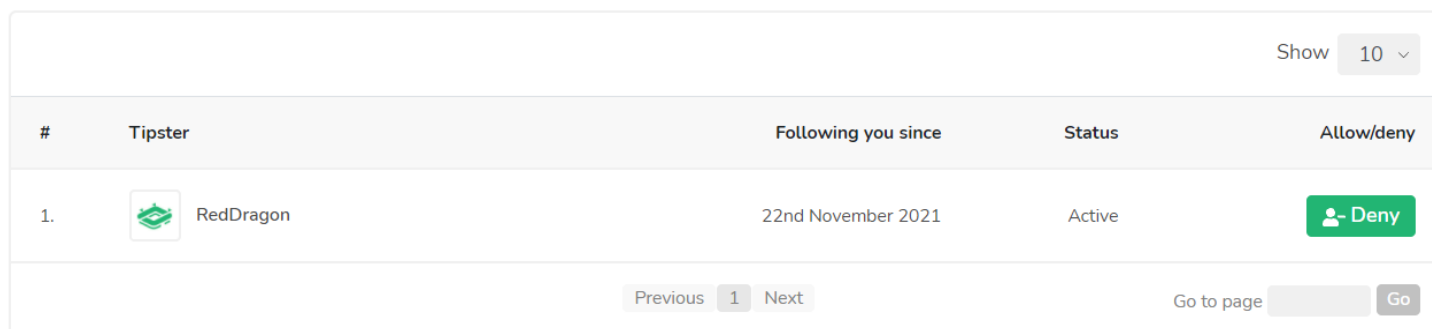

Guide For Tipsters Posting Tips

Your profile page

There are many reasons a tipster may keep their tips private. Some might want to be notified when a user starts following them so that they can make sure their best tips are being put out. Some might want to keep their tips private since they are meant for a closed group of followers and not for public consumption. Some might not intend their tips to be followed by others and use their tips just as a way of tracking their own performance or sending bet instructions to their automated betting bots via the TippingSports website interface.

For whatever reason you choose to be a private tipster, other users can still click and request to follow you, and put messages on your wall (if it is not private) to try and communicate with you if they want to follow you. If you enable the notification setting, you will receive an email when users request to follow you. Private tipsters will have a padlock icon displayed next to their name on the tipster tables.

NOTE: Users who were following you before you switched to private tips will automatically become approved users. You will have to go into your “My followers” area and click on the “Deny” button to remove a user from your approved follower list.

3.2.5 Your followers

You can view who is following you by clicking on “My followers” from your profile name drop-down menu. You can see their username and when they started following you. If you click on their username, you can see their profile and leave messages on their wall if you want to communicate with them.

The screenshot shows the TippingSports website interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with 'Tipping', 'Betting', 'Help', and a 'BlueTiger' dropdown menu. A green '+ Add tip' button is also visible. Below the navigation bar, the main heading is 'My followers'. A dropdown menu is open, showing options: 'My profile', 'Edit details', 'Automated betting', 'Bets history', 'My followers' (highlighted in green), 'My tipsters', 'My payments', and 'Logout'. Below the dropdown, there's a table of followers. The first follower is 'RedDragon' with a status of 'Active' and a date of '22nd November 2021'. The table has columns for '#', 'Tipster', 'Following you since', and 'Status'. At the bottom, there are pagination controls showing 'Previous', '1', 'Next', and a 'Go to page' field with a 'Go' button.

3.2.6 Being a good tipster

If you do have followers, it is important to think about factors such as the time you add tips, stake sizes, consistency, bet volume and so on.

If you post your tips less than an hour before the event starts, then it is more difficult for followers to get their own bets on, unless they are following on automated betting. If you know that your tips are going to be posted close to the event start time, it can be helpful to write that on your profile to let followers know. When possible, it is helpful for your followers if you post tips as far in advance of the event start time as possible.

TippingSports already limits the points for each tip to a range between 0.25 to 2.00 points for each selection. If you know your own betting history, take the time to check if your staking levels will avoid bankruptcy on a 100 point bank. Instead of just tipping 2 points for every bet, take advantage of the stake size intervals to adjust your tipped point levels to match your confidence for each tip. If you know your system works, but has large drawdown periods possible, let your followers know in your profile to help them have confidence in your methods.

Consider your bet volume. Do you post a few tips per day, or are there sometimes 30 all on a Saturday afternoon? If you know your betting volume, you can let users know in your profile so that they can make sure to have funds available in their accounts to cover those busy periods. This is especially useful for automated bettors who may not be aware of bet volumes until after the fact.

Overall, in order to be a tipster that others want to follow, consistency is the key. Then, whatever system works for you, other users can see your history on TippingSports and make their own decisions based on that. If you change your betting style each week, it becomes harder for users to judge your results and less likely to follow you. The simple question is, would you follow yourself based on the information and results you see on your TippingSports profile page?

3.2.7 Following your own tips

Even if you have no initial aim to become a tipster with followers, you can use TippingSports for tracking your own bets, sharing bets with friends via email, Twitter, Telegram or even for sending bets to your automated betting service when you are on the move. (TippingSports bespoke automated betting service or the Bf Bot Manager automated betting software via the unique link.)

3.3 Sending tip notifications to followers

There are many ways to share and publicize your tips automatically. Each time you post a tip, after the 2 minute deletion period expires, the tip will be available on your profile's tips page, on the followers' "My active tips" page, on the general "All free tips" page if your tips are not private, sent via email if the user has that option active, sent via their Unique link to their automated betting software if active, and shared via Twitter and Telegram if that function is enabled.

3.3.1 Tips sent by Email

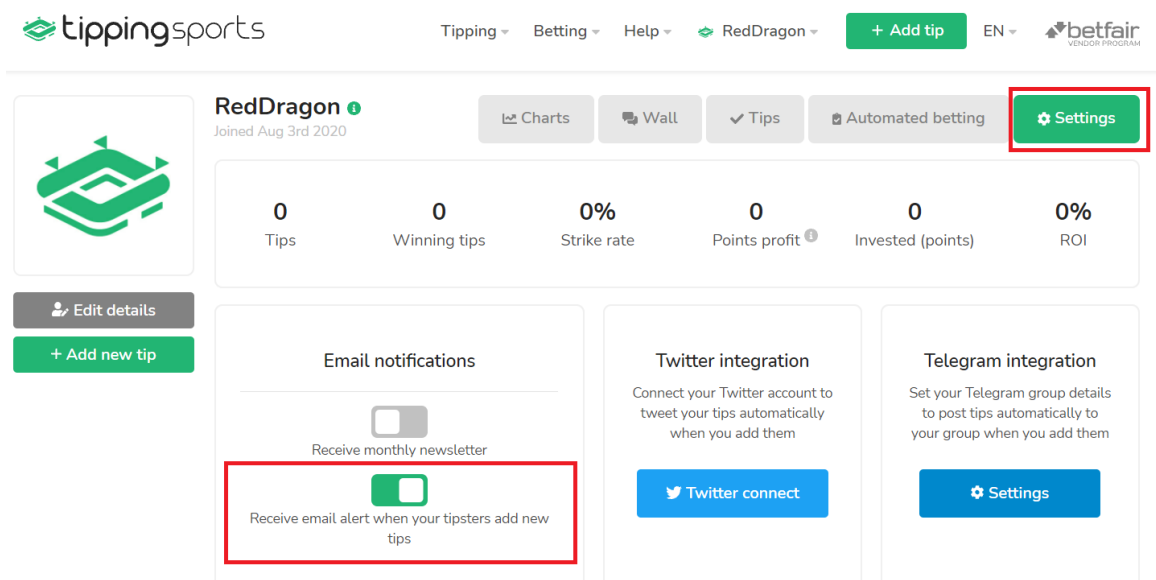

Image 71 – Enable receiving tips via email

The most common way that users are alerted to your tips is through their email box. They must have the "Receive email alert when your tipsters add new tips" option enabled on their profile settings page.

3.3.2 Unique link - Make sure your followers never miss a bet

Each account has a unique link in their profile page. The unique link lists all the tips that a user is following. The content that the unique link provides is updated automatically when you add new tips. The main advantage of unique link is that its content can easily be read by any software, especially by betting bots that can get tips at your unique link every few minutes and place bets automatically. The Bf Bot Manager is one example of automated betting software that can use this link.

The unique link is very useful if you run a tipping service and you need a way to make sure your followers always get your tips, even if they don't see an email and even if you publish the tip 10 minutes before the event starts. By placing tips on TippingSports, your users can follow through the TippingSports automated betting service or the Bf Bot Manager software, then it can automate the whole betting process for your followers. When the process is easy and automated, you are more likely to keep your followers long term. By placing tips on TippingSports, you also have an independent 3rd party website that logs when tips were published, the bet

3.4 Automated betting on Tips

3.4.1 Through TippingSports

This is one of the easiest ways to make sure your followers can always follow your bets, even if you post close to event start times. By using the TippingSports automated betting service it creates a 100% automated betting system for followers who have a Betfair account.

It is important to remember that followers using this method can only edit the value of their 1 point bets. So they are using a 100 point betting bank. This is important to consider when choosing the point value for each tip. 10 losing 2 point tips could cost 20% of a follower's bank. So it is good to consider your point sizes in regard to a 100 point betting bank.

3.4.2 With Bf Bot Manager V3

Some betting strategies can work better with customized staking plans and bot strategy files that you can recommend or share with users. By recommending automated betting through the Bf Bot Manager, you can give users even more control over their betting, add recommended staking plans and other recommended settings to help users make the most of your tips,.

On the TippingSports website, the help section has an FAQ section, information about VPS – Virtual Private Servers, Betting terminology, Staking plans and more information about us and a contact form. The Terminology section is very useful and we reproduce it here.

4.2 Terminology

Arbitrage

It means to place bets on one or more market types at the same or different betting exchanges or bookmakers so that, regardless of the final event outcome, you get sure profit. This is usually possible when you get better odds at one bookmaker for one outcome and then place bets on other outcomes at other bookmakers.

Place a bet on a selection to win.

Betting bot

A software program that works 24/7 and places bets automatically by your rules. Betting bots are capable of placing thousands of bets per day, trading, hedging, dutching, betting by staking plans, simulating and executing thousands of operations within a second to find selections to bet on while checking all your rules. This is something that humans simply cannot do in such a short amount of time. Betting bots are perfect for automated betting on your tips and following other tipsters' tips. You can set them up on a VPS server and leave them working for days.

Betting exchange

A Betting exchange allows you to place Back or Lay bets, meaning that you are actually betting against other gamblers rather than against a bookmaker. By placing bets at your own odds, you act as a bookie. If you accept odds set by other users, then you act as a customer.

Dutching

A dutching method is used when you want to win your target profit if one of your selections wins. In this case, the amount of money that you will risk can be high if odds are low.

Drifter

This is a selection whose odds increase over time as the event is about to start e.g. if odds of 2.50 two hours before the start time go up to 3.50 five minutes before the start time, the odds changed from 2.50 to 3.50, so this selection is a drifter.

Even money

Betting at decimal odds of 2.0, which means that you can win or lose the same amount of money.

F

Favourite

A selection that has the highest chance of winning or with the lowest odds e.g. a selection with odds of 1.50

H

Handicap

A form of betting where selections are handicapped according to their form e.g. stronger teams must score more goals for your handicap bet to win.

Hedge

A hedge method is used to place bets so that you get equal profit or loss regardless of if your selection wins or loses. If odds had moved in your favour then you will get sure profit, but if odds had moved against you then you will get a sure loss. Example: If you Back £10 at odds of 3.00, and if the odds went down to 1.50, the hedge will get you a sure profit, but if the odds went up to 5.5 then you will get a sure loss. Hedging is also known as greening up, red up, trading out and cashing out. In any case, hedge cannot increase your exposure, it can only reduce it.

Lay

Placing a bet against the selection. This puts you in the position of a bookmaker. If the selection wins, then you will pay the backer his winnings.

O

Odds on

Odds on refers to a selection whose odds are under 2.00.

Overround

For a detailed explanation it is best that you read the Wikipedia page on Mathematics of bookmaking.

P

Pony

A pony is a £25 bet.

ROI

ROI is short for Return On Investment e.g. if you risk £100 to win £20, then your return on investment is only 20%. This means that you are risking five times more money than you can win.

Removed runner

Those are usually horse or greyhound selections that are removed from the race.

Start price

The start price is the odds for a selection that are declared at the start of event.

Selection

Selection is a team, player, horse, greyhound or any other possible winner of an event that you are betting on.

Steamer

This is a selection whose odds decrease over time as the event is about to start e.g. If odds of 2.50 two hours before the start time went down to 1.50 five minutes before start time, the odds changed from 2.50 to 1.50 so this selection is a steamer.

VPS

A Virtual Private Server is a virtual machine (remote computer) that you can connect to by using a remote desktop connection. A VPS runs its own operating system which means that you can install any software that you like on it and run it, just like you do on your own laptop/desktop computer. A VPS with a Windows operating system is perfect for running betting bots. We recommend SimplyCloud VPS servers.

Void bet

A bet is voided when the selection is removed or the event is cancelled. In such a case your stake is returned to you.

This refers to “the draw” selection on football match odds markets. In such cases a “1” is used for the home team and a “2” for the away team, because of that such markets are called 1X2 or match odds.
